

Global Environmental History-distance

Seminar assignment for week 45

Written reflections

You have now taken part of the course material from part 2 of the course. Now it's time for you to briefly summarize the course content and then write down your own thoughts and reflections on the course content from part 2 of the course. What were the most interesting perspectives? What was new? Was there anything that provoked you? Was something extra interesting or extra inspiring? Write down your thoughts and reflections on the online lectures, online articles and the course book Dawn over the Kalahari: how humans became human by Lasse Berg.

It is important that you reflect upon how the different topics from different parts of the course content relates to other topics in other parts of the content.

We want you to include answers to the following questions in your reflections:

1. What are the main arguments used by Lasse Berg in the book Dawn over the Kalahari: how humans became human? Try to briefly summarize the main points and topics of the book and reflect on what you think about Lasse Berg's arguments.
2. Briefly summarize the different topics and perspectives in the online course material from each week in part 2. Also reflect upon what you yourself think about the topics and perspectives presented.
3. Answer at least two of the following questions when you reflect on the course content from part 2:
 - a) What were the most interesting perspectives?
 - b) What thoughts and ideas were new for you?
 - c) Was there anything that provoked you?
 - d) Was something extra interesting or extra inspiring?

This is a rather free assignment, and its purpose is to prepare you for the seminar. You do not need to use exact references. It's enough if you write something like "I agree with what Edward Said says in his lecture, about... because ..."

Your text should be 2-4 pages long, with font size 12, line spacing 1.5.

Submit the assignment no later than Tuesday November 6th. You should always submit all course assignments through Studentportalen at www.studentportalen.uu.se. Please write both your name and task name as the document name, for example: sara_klingstedt_sem1.doc. If you have any problems with submitting assignments, please contact the course coordinators by e-mail.